This month, Nick Grew writes:

Rest is important and, whether you're going away in August or not, my guess is that it will feel a different month, a quieter month. I recently had the privilege of being invited to visit the McLaren Centre, and in one place there was a front wing of an F1 car being made. It is machined from a solid lump of aluminium and that's quite stressful for the metal, so part-way through the process it is sent away to be annealed – a kind of metallurgical rest after the milling that's gone before and the work that's still to come in making it the finished product.

I recall that one helpful piece of teaching from the LifeShapes material we looked at a while back is that as Christians we are called to work from rest more than the other way around. In reality our rest is probably a bit of both – rather like for that aluminium wing, because we too are being fashioned by the hand of God - matured for his purpose – and rest is part of that process. We need to de-stress but also offer ourselves afresh for Jesus to work us and mature us as his disciples.

I pray that whatever this month holds for you, you will allow the rest God brings both to settle out the accumulated stresses of the past but also prepare you for all that he hopes for you in the Autumn, so that as individuals and a church we may continue to 'grow up' in The Lord to his glory and purpose [see and ponder Ephesians 4:7-16].
